Manzo-Di Nunzio Wedding
Is Solemnized Here Today

A wedding was solemnized this morning in St. Ann's Catholic Church, when Miss Yolanda I. DiNunzio, daughter of Mrs. Clementina DiNunzio, 836 Beaver street, became the bride of Rocco Manzo, 327 Brook street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Marcellino Romagnolo, at ten o'clock with high nuptial mass. Miss Frances Tamburella played Lohengrin's wedding march as the bride party entered the church, and Percy G. Ford, Jackson street, sang "I Love You Truly," and "Oh Promise Me."

The bride was attended by Miss Regina DiNunzio, her sister, as maid of honor; Miss Mary Stone, Jefferson avenue, and Miss Congetta Peterpaul, 817 Garden street, as bridesmaids; Gloria Trassati, 325 Lincoln avenue, niece of the bride, and Anna Marie Franchisini, 1108 Wood street, as flower girls. Serving as best man was Charles Chibaline, Beaver street, and the ushers were Joseph Margottti, Chestnut street, Daniel Greco, Beaver street, and Nicholas Polella, 333 Penn street.

The bride was gowned in white satin, fashioned on Princess lines. The bodice featured the high cowl neckline trimmed with pearl clips, long sleeves which were cut full to the elbow and tight-fitting to the wrist. The skirt ended in a long train. Her slippers were white satin and her tulle veil was made with a halo of pearls. She carried calla lilies.

The bride's attendants were dressed in aquamarine moire taffeta. They were form-fitting models made with short puffed sleeves, high standing collars in back. The skirts were long and full with short trains and were finished with girdles of the material. Each dress had rhinestone ornaments at the front of the bodice. The attendants wore moire taffeta turbans of peach tone slippers to match, and carried bouquets of roses.

The flower girls were attired in pink net dresses over pink taffeta, ankle length, with tight-fitting bodices and short puffed sleeves. Trim was of blue rosettes. They wore pink net turbans with nose veils, blue kid slippers and carried colonial bouquets of mixed flowers.

A dinner was served at the home of the groom, the bridal party and immediate families attending. A reception will be held this evening at the home of the bride. An orchestra will furnish music for dancing. The couple will leave this evening for Niagara Falls, N. Y., for one week. They will reside at the bride's parents' home.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT

By DR. GUS W. DYER

Professor of Economics, Vanderbilt University, and a Dirt Farmer
[In reply to the President's Acceptance Address.]

PART III.

In that F. O. P. address [Federal Officeholders Party Address] you say:

"The hours men and women worked and the wages they received were imposed by this new industrial dictatorship."

In 1849, 41,000 persons per million population were employed in factories. In 1929, 76,000 per million population were employed in factories. Almost twice as many workers in proportion to population were engaged in manufacturing as were employed in manufacturing in the good old days before machinery displaced labor.

The average annual wage received by factory employees were as follows:

1859	288.00
1869	303.00
1879	347.00
1889	445.00
1909	518.00
1929	1,314.60

The average factory employee, perhaps worked a third more hours per day in 1849, than the employee worked in 1929. THIS MARVELOUS INCREASE IN WAGES TOOK PLACE UNDER THE OLD CONSTITUTION.

As to the farmers, you say:

"Those who tilled the soil no longer reaped the rewards which were their right. The small measure of their gains was decreed by men in distant cities."

Condition of Farmer

In 1930, 2,911,644 farms were owned wholly by those who operated these farms. There was no sort of mortgage on 1,765,907 of these farms.

Total value of all farms wholly owned by operators $21,123,468,000
Total mortgage indebtedness on these farms 4,080,176,000

Value of these farms over mortgages $17,043,292,000

Value of all wholly owned farms operated by owners in 1900 9,129,318,000

Gain in farm value in 1930 over 1900 $ 7,913,974,000

Just why the "economic royalist in distant cities" permitted the value of farms of this type to increase in value from nine billion dollars in 1900 to twenty-one billion in 1930 is not explained.

As to savings you say:

"The savings of the average family were tools which the new economic royalist used to dig itself in."

In 1930, 52,729,000 persons had saving deposits of the value of $28,479,000,000.

In 1930, 12,336,754 members in Building and Loan Associations had assets of the value of $8,824,119,000.

In 1930, 112,212,000 life and industrial insurance policies were in effect in this country, having a face value of over $100,000,000,000.

In 1931, the assets of these insurance companies had a value of $20,159,940,000.

The assets of these insurance companies grew from $1,742,414,000 in 1900 to $20,159,940,000 in 1931.

In 1920 there were approximately 26,000,000 stockholders in

PIER REMOVAL NEARS
COMPLETION AT CROYDON

Last of Old Steel and Wooden Structure Nearly Disappears

BEGAN REMOVAL IN 1934

The work of removing the two large stone piers that formerly carried the bridge over the Neshaminy Creek, between Bridgewater and Croydon, is rapidly nearing completion.

The piers, the last of the old steel and wood structure that carried Bristol Pike over the stream, are being torn down by WPA workers. The task was begun in the early part of the year. One of the stone structures has been cleared to the low water line and the other will be removed shortly.

It is said that government engineers will remove the structures that remain under water by blasting. The stones and re-enforcements in the piers are being piled on either side of the Creek.

The work of tearing down the bridge was begun in 1934 when at that time the new modern concrete structure was placed over the Neshaminy a short distance up-stream. The PRR bridge is situated on the down-stream side at a distance of a few hundred feet.

The old bridge was erected in 1896 and the commissioners' names, listed on the plate that was attached to the bridge were: W. R. Vandegrift, I. H. Wismer and W. R. Strohm. The structure carried the road which was known in the last part of the 19th century as the Bristol Pike, and at that time toll was charged to cross. One cent was the toll for a pedestrian and there was a graduated scale of tolls for carriages of different sizes.

Outgrowth of Automobile
Crashes

FILED AT DOYLESTOWN

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 5—Three damage suits, aggregating $15,000, all of which resulted from automobile accidents, have been filed in the Court of Common Pleas, here.

In the first statement of claim, Harry Ebener, near Bucksville, is named the defendant in a $10,491 damage suit, filed by Mrs. Bertha F. Hager, of Ottsville.

Mrs. Hager alleges that her husband, Samuel D. Hager, was driving a truck on April 16 in front of his home on the Lackawanna Trail and that it collided with a car driven by the defendant, who is charged with being negligent in the operation of his car.

Mr. Hager died three days later in the Easton Hospital from injuries received in the collision. Medical and surgical expenses were incurred amounting to $40.41 and the funeral expenses amounted to $451.25.

In her own right, Mrs. Hager is seeking damages amounting to $10,000, and the additional sum of $491.66.

The second action in trespass filed in the Prothonotary's office here grew out of an automobile collision between Edward R. Smith and Ann E. Smith.

To Unveil Doane Tablet
At George School Today

GEORGE SCHOOL, Sept. 5—A tablet in memory of Daniel Doane will be unveiled today by members of the Pennsylvania-New Jersey chapter of the Doane Family Association of America, at George School.

A splendid program is outlined for the members, including talks and presentation of historical papers. The tablet to be unveiled in the afternoon is a bronze plaque to be placed on a three-ton boulder on land adjoining George School, once owned by Daniel Doane.

Some time after coming to Pennsylvania he dropped the final letter of his name, so that today many of his descendants have gone back to the original form. Daniel was the grandson of Deacon John Doane, who landed at Plymouth, Mass., in 1636. Born in 1667, he came to Bucks county from Eastham, Mass., and was the progenitor of the Doan family in this section.

The New Century club house will be the scene of the morning session which is scheduled to begin at 10.30, and at 12.30 luncheon will be served at Ye Old Temperance House.

The afternoon session, besides the dedication of the tablet, will include the reading of a historical paper relating to the Doane family, and Miss Sarah V. Way, Coatesville, will present a paper on "Daniel Doan of Bucks County."

Election of officers for the chapter is also listed on the afternoon schedule. In addition to members of the Doan family, members of the Bucks County Historical Society, the Friends' Historical Society of Swarthmore, and of the Twining family, are invited to attend.

"Suzy," Fine Attraction,
Features Jean Harlow

"Suzy," the outstanding new screen attraction showing Monday and Tuesday at the Grand Theatre, tells an electrifying story of an American chorus girl stranded in London at the outbreak of the World War and caught in the web of war-time espionage.

Jean Harlow is starred in the new production and has two of the screen's most popular leading men in Franchot Tone and Cary Grant.

"Suzy" marks the third reunion of Miss Harlow and Franchot Tone as screen sweethearts within two years. Their previous appearances together were in "The Girl From Missouri" and "Reckless." Cary Grant, completing the romantic triangle, appears with the star for the first time.

The production was filmed under the direction of George Fitzmaurice who has to his credit, among numerous film triumphs, the two Garbo successes, "Mati Hari" and "As You Desire Me." The picture was adapted from Herbert Gorman's best-seller novel by Horace Jackson with additional dialogue by Lenore Coffee.

Mrs. Dorothy Fechtenburg presided at the session.

Another hosiery club has been organized, with Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., and Mrs. Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., being in charge. Another order has been placed for marshmallow fluff with Miss Emily Bracken in charge.

Report of the state Legion Auxiliary convention at Johnstown was given by Mrs. Fechtenburg, the local delegate.

A card party to occur September 21st will be in charge of Mrs. J. C. Schmidt, Jr., aided by Mrs. Walter Strouse and Mrs. John Smith.

The meeting was largely attended, owing to the opening of the new rathskeller. Refreshments were served and dancing enjoyed. Installation will take place at the next meeting.

The attendant of the bride was her sister, Miss Agnes Ward, Beaver street, and the best man was Edward Kervick, Chestnut street.

The former Miss Ward was attractive in a dress of Princess style, fashioned of white satin, with trim of lace. The gown featured a train. Her tulle veil was cap-shaped. Seed pearls enhanced the cap and also the chin strap. The bride wore slippers of white satin, and carried white roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Agnes Ward, wore a dress of aquamarine blue lace over satin; a pink turban featuring a face veil, and white slippers.

CAT CAUGHT IN MECHANISM

By the Stroller

A woman visitor in the Third Ward was horrified yesterday to discover that unknowingly she had killed a cat.

The woman in question has been visiting with friends in the Third Ward and kept her car in a nearby garage. Yesterday morning she went to the garage to get the car, so as to attend early mass. In her hurry she opened the car door, jumped in and pushed her foot onto the starter.

"That's a queer noise," she thought. "I wonder what's the matter, now?"

Then she called the garage man who raised the hood and there found a cat caught in the mechanism of the machine.

It is presumed that the cat crawled under the hood onto the motor during the night to keep warm.

Thugs Are Frightened
From Scene

A desperate effort was made last night by two men, to rob a colored man of his pay envelope as he emerged from the place of his employment shortly before midnight. The attempt was unsuccessful, due mainly to the quick action of the intended victim.

It was shortly before midnight when Allen May, colored, 316 Wood street, walked from the grounds of the Rohm & Haas Chemical Company plant, South Bristol, in Bristol Township.

May reported to Bucks County Detective Russo that two men stood upon a running board of an automobile parked near the bridge and that when he approached they attacked him. The three tussled and rolled around and May went down the embankment into the water nearby. As he did so he grabbed his pay envelope from his pocket and tossed the money into the weeds and grass. All but $5 of May's pay was later found in the grass.

In the tussle the two highwaymen cut the pocket out of May's trousers but when he rolled down the embankment they became frightened and escaped.

AFTER THE SOLSTICE

Man violates the laws of nature another time in staging his annual awakening and revival in the fall instead of in the spring. When all else is going to sleep for the long autumn and winter, man is just emerging from his summer slumber. Activities of mankind run their cycles in time with the motions of the earth, but except among the actual tillers of the soil, the season of greatest activity begins with the waning of summer.

Agriculture in summer lays the foundation upon which industry and commerce build the year's business structure. Newly harvested crops hurry the wheels of transportation, provide raw materials for industry's machines and produce the purchasing power which stimulates business.

September is the dividing line. Then the vacation season of least activity and production ends and the period of maximum effort begins. There is stir everywhere as man's providence prompts him to provide clothing, fuel, food stores, all the vast requirements that permit modern complex existence under stern conditions of northern winter.

Agriculture's harvest is on. Industry and commerce are sowing. Here is promise for every sort of worker and every dollar of capital.

CRACKING DOWN ON MOTORISTS

New York State is trying, since September 1, a new law that prescribes thorough treatment for the motorist afflicted with heavy accelerator foot.

Under the new law the first conviction for reckless driving or speeding will be punishable by a maximum fine of $100 or a 30-day stay in jail. If the culprit repeats within 18 months his fine may not be less than $50 and not more than $250, or he may behind the bars for 90 days. And the third offense automatically will revoke the driver's license, and will bring a fine of $100 to $500 or a jail sentence of 180 days.

This seems to give the court plenty of latitude for disciplining reckless drivers, but it has the defect that has become apparent in nearly all such laws. Reckless driving is difficult to define in law. Much depends on the judgment of police officers and on the impartiality of the court.

Severe sentences are a deterrent if lawbreakers get what the law says is due them.

The G-Men have dug up a new Public Enemy, and just in time, too. Our federal sleuthing agencies had been reduced to shadowing one another.

They say that all reforms are planned by the common people. Why, not? Those who are sitting pretty don't need a new seat.

If the Veteran Rounder had known, he would have gone out for the Olympic drinking team.

Pipe Line at Newtown Causes Controversy

Because of the right of eminent domain the company has the right by State charter to take and use a strip of land 32 feet wide through private property. This may be used not only for the laying of the pipe line, but may be entered upon at will for all future time to patrol, make repairs, or for any other required work.

Because of the sums offered by the company, litigation will probably be necessary in some cases. The first offer made to most of the property owners was 50 cents per rod, linear measure, and the payment of crop damages in the future. It is believed that a few farmers have settled for this figure, but others have held out for more.

Final offers of the company have been refused by John Goodnough, Walker Burns, L. Meltzer, Gus Leedom, and Warren Slack. In the Goodnough farm, the workers for the pipe line company made a road through two fields of fine alfalfa, cut a way through a field of sweet corn, and distributed 45-foot sections of 8-inch pipe before Mr. Goodnough was aware that his property had been invaded. Because of the right of eminent domain the company does not have to seek any license or permit to invade the properties. The men are just simply coming in and changing the scenery to suit themselves.

Viewers will have to be appointed for the five farmers who refused to settle for the company figure. If the terms of the viewers are not acceptable the final action will be litigation in court.

"GLITTERING GIRL"

CHAPTER XXVIII

Both ladies stared at the passport which Vernon held out.

Then each one nodded, mystified, and startled. It seemed a queer thing that it should be in this young girl's possession! "How did you get it?"

"Never mind how. It's important to have you verify these photographs as the man and woman you saw five nights ago in the hotel here?"

"Of course it's the Metchevskis! That's like Serge as two peas, and there's his signature to prove it!"

"It must certainly be Marie Metcheva and her husband," said Mrs. Frensham, her small eyes opened to their widest extent. "But why do you ask us? Isn't it perfectly evident?"

"You say they are married? You met them in various places in Europe under that name on the passport?"

Both chorused an affirmative. "And the reputation of the pair was anything but savory," Naomi interpolated. "It's my belief they work apart because together they'd be recognized and kicked out of most places!"

"Hush, Naomi! Don't be so sharp. You're speaking of friends of Miss Tyson's."

"Nonsense! If they're her friends, what's she doing with that passport, and questioning us about it?"

This seemed obvious. Naomi tartly proceeded: "I always thought they were crooks, but until my eyes lit on that passport just now, I never did think they were really married, even if they did pass themselves as husband and wife!"

"But they don't pass as husband and wife!" declared Vernon. "We know them as Mertina de Bray—a widow or divorcee—and Prince Ivan Karloff, an unfortunate Russian nobleman. Why, I never heard anyone address Mertina as Madame Metcheva until you did, five nights ago, in the hotel here. She left it after that. Do you see the connection now?"

"Good heavens! What's their game?"

Naomi exclaimed excitedly: "But Prince Karloff is dead! He died in Constantinople about fifteen months ago! He had no relatives. I know him well, and so did Serge Metcheva!"

"And you say your parents had these people as your guests?" gasped Fannie Frensham. "Oh, my dear Miss Tyson, when you've roamed the Continent of Europe as long as Naomi and I have, you learn it's not dangerous to pick up with strangers—you've got to be careful!"

"But Prince Karloff said—"

"There's no Prince Karloff," said Naomi firmly. "The title died out with the death of the old bachelor Prince in Constantinople, I tell you. He had few friends. Cracked a bit through his sorrows and losses. If this Metcheva calls herself Prince Karloff, he has the devil's own impudence, that's all!"

To Vernon it seemed as though McGraw's ears—as well as her own—were twitching with excitement.

"Would you both be so very kind—if called upon, I mean—to repeat all this before witnesses?"

"Fannie and I drawn into a scandal!" snapped Naomi. "No thanks."

"Fannie deprecated: 'My dear, I'd like to help you, but I'd hate to get into the newspapers. You understand.'"

"You won't. I promise you, you won't. But I came all the way down here by myself, commanding the family car and all, to get right to the bottom of the Karloff-de Bray-Metcheva affair! Now it's all tumbled into my lap, thanks to your kindness! They'd involved me terribly, you see—got me all tangled up so it looked as though I couldn't break loose—as though I were going to cost my father a huge sum of money! I can't tell you more just now—it was a plot they hatched up between them—"

"Blackmail!" breathed Fannie. Naomi sniffed: "Why, that's their usual game! It wasn't merely shady play at the casino that made Monte Carlo too hot to hold them—it was rumored all over the place that Metcheva was extorting money by blackmail!"

Fannie patted Vernon's hand kindly. "Naomi and I will be in New York in a couple of days, and if it's going to help you, my dear—we'll be glad to talk to your father and mother."

Vernon thanked her. She fell silent. What a queer, gullible place New York was, when people of such background and history as the Metchevskis were accepted so easily!

Eleven o'clock that night found Vernon safely back in the apartment in the Hotel Splendide. Her father welcomed her warmly, but her mother was peevish over her mysterious absence.

"It's unnatural, the way you treat me!" Sadie's small eyes roamed sullenly and inquisitively from her husband to her daughter. "There's a compact between the two of you to keep me in the dark! Neither of you trusts me with your secrets!"

It was the long, long tongue of Sadie Tyson that could not be relied upon—she would talk her head off on this private matter to anybody that would listen to her!

"Mother dear, you'll know everything shortly now. Dad has told you all he can. I'm definitely on the track of the necklace."

Sadie tossed her head. "Then why, might I ask, haven't you taken Prince Karloff into your confidence? He was here yesterday, as nice and gentlemanly as could be, and anxious to see you. Why, you silly girl, you wouldn't reveal the man's in love with you and wants to marry you? Isn't his title anything to you at all?"

Vernon longed to shout back at her: "Nothing in the world! The man's a fraud—a thief—a blackmailer!"

Discretion restrained her. Everything would be made known to her mother soon, and poor Sadie would be thankful never again to hear the name of Karloff.

"I'm tired, Mother. I'm going to bed. Please don't ask me any more questions tonight, either of you."

But Vernon slept badly, despite her long drive in the open. For Terry Shannon apparently had not even tried to communicate with her during her absence.

Morning brought a telegram from Hot Springs from kindly Fannie Frensham. "HAVE BEEN WORRIED ABOUT YOU SO HAVE PERSUADED MOM TO LEAVE HERE ONE DAY SOONER AND WE SHALL ARRIVE AT FOUR O'CLOCK TONIGHT FRIDAY AT THE HOTEL PETERARNO."

Mrs. Tyson was still peevish. She cheered up a little after breakfast when a box of beautiful red roses arrived from Prince Karloff, and dressed not to her room, spoiled daughter, but to herself!

"There's someone around here who appreciates me, anyway!" She ordered two large vases from the housekeeper's office, and made a great fuss of arranging the flowers.

"I've asked the Prince to drop in for tea at five today, so maybe you'll have enough respect for your mother-in-law's wishes this time, and be here then!" she snapped at Vernon as the latter was getting ready to go out on another mysterious mission.

Vernon quickly agreed. How astonished poor Sadie would have been were she to follow her daughter down to the lobby of the Splendide and overhear her telephone McGraw, her private detective!

"I want you to be here shortly before five, this afternoon, McGraw, and stay downstairs near the tower elevators. You have that photostatic copy of the passport that I gave you? Good. You'll recognize him by the picture. Give him about five minutes to get upstairs, then follow, and wait outside the door of apartment 37C. If he attempts to leave before I let you know, stop him, remember!"

From there, Vernon emerged on Park Avenue into bright sunshine. A doorman handed her into a taxi. She directed the driver to take her to the Customs House down on the Battery.

"Will you kindly show me in what department the Inspector of Customs can be found?" she asked of an official who had reached her destination.

After several waits, she found herself in a room with three desks in it. To a man at one of them she addressed herself.

"This is a confidential matter. If you will look up your records you will be able to tell me whether or not, on the third of October of 1932, a valuable diamond necklace from Europe was 'declared' by its owners on entering the Port of New York?"

"Huh? What name?"

"Metcheva."

"After some questioning, the official went off to another section of the building. He returned after a short interval.

"Step this way, please."

With beating pulses, Vernon complied. This was a crucial moment in her investigation. What would it bring forth?

After considerable searching in heavy ledgers, she was definitely informed that no diamond necklace had been "declared" on that date. Nor had any party called Metcheva—or Karloff—brought any taxable jewelry at any time into the Port of New York!

After her exciting and successful mission to the Customs House, Vernon did not immediately return home. She knew that her mother's glistening eyes would read all kinds of meaning into her excitement. And until the appointed hour of five this afternoon, she did not want Sadie to know anything of her wonderful discovery.

In the crisp November air, she walked swiftly, chin up and hopes high, along by the waters of the Battery. Great ships rode at anchor in the sunshine. Here were life and movement.

How glorious to be aboard a big liner, on a wonderful honeymoon—headed for Europe!

How glorious to go right round the globe with one you loved—to see glowing tropical countries and new customs and peoples!

With Terry Shannon at her side—forgetting everything about that lying Prince Karloff, whom she now loathed!

CHAPTER XXIX

If her mother only had been different—had more discretion—more reticence—Vernon would have told her everything this morning. Her conscience really had given her twinges when Sadie had again brandished the Prince's title in her face! It seemed wrong to permit her mother to dwell in idle dreams about this would-be bigamist. How utterly shocked she would be when she heard the truth!

But her mother would have one comfort, anyway, that the scandal would not break. That it would not be permitted to leak out to the newspapers. What other people thought and said was of paramount importance to Sadie Tyson. It always had been so, as far back as Vernon could remember.

Well, one couldn't change people. One must make the best of them. Utterly different in character and outlook from her mother, Vernon was yet much attached to Sadie.

Hungry-looking men down by the waterside begged money for food from her. She gave something to each one.

Life was so sad for some, she reflected. So sorry for others. Not that the people on Park Avenue didn't do enough for charity—almost every ball and big entertainment had the unemployed as its beneficiaries.

Yet the frivolity of so many people's lives, their self-absorption in a so-called good time, their purposeless ways, struck Vernon now forcibly. In the daily whirl of Park Avenue, with its continuous telephone calls, luncheons, cocktail parties, bridges, dinners, theaters and dances, one hadn't time to think. A kind of dizziness engulfed one.

Vernon's warm and kindly heart went out to the ragged, hungry men and women.

She surprised more than one of them by slipping into their hands a few dollar bills. Presently she found a little crowd about her, and—she and rather alarmed—hailed a taxicab and drove off uptown.

To Central Park. Once there, she told the driver to go slowly, up towards the reservoir. She was in no hurry. It was noon. She leaned back in the cab, and idly watched the men and women riding horseback on the bridge path.

Nan rode here quite frequently. Perhaps she might get a glimpse of her? She decided to dismiss the taxi, and stroll in the bright November sunshine, and think out the best way of getting in touch with Terry.

It was five minutes later that she saw him—hatless—virile and handsome on a big dappled gelding. He was talking and laughing as he rode beside a trim little figure in a natty gray riding habit, seated side-saddle on a chestnut cob . . . and with a pang at her heart, Vernon thought that her cousin, Nan Rushington, never had looked prettier nor more appealing.

So he had been with Nan, these days? He was falling for Nan's bright charm, her gaiety, her ready wit. . . . His previous attitude of amused tolerance had gone, and this had taken its place. . . .

It was as though a cold weight pressed against her chest as he gazed, wide-eyed, at the couple.

A wave of her hand—a cry—and they would see her—

But she felt numb and mute. She could not bring herself to signal to them.

The end of the bridge path was right here, and they must turn. She would hurry away among the trees—

But something galvanized her to the spot. It was as though her feet had no power in them.

Nan was the first to see her standing there. Oh! Certainly Nan saw. But she wheeled her cob quickly around! Her blue eyes were back absently to Terry's face. She gave not one sign that she had seen her cousin.

Scarlet flooded Vernon's cheeks. Nan wanted Terry all to herself. She resented Vernon's intrusion.

A queer little stifled call escaped her lips, drawn from her heart like blood from a wound. Though Terry

JOHN GEORGE TO FIGHT BENNY LAMONICA HERE

Matchmaker, Patsey Moffo has arranged a fine card for the sport fans of this vicinity for Monday night when the St. Ann's Athletic Association conducts another of its bi-monthly shows in its arena. Ten thrilling bouts have been arranged with the sanction of the Middle Atlantic district of the A. A. U.

In one of the feature bouts of the night, John George, up-coming youngster from the Sigma Theta Club will fight Benny Lamonica, Mason warrior, who whipped Vince Delia in the last show. George and Lamonica fought a slam-bang affair at the Arena two weeks ago and banged each other unmercifully for three sessions. This bout is on the order of another Delia-Lamonica battle.

Another match which is expected to have the fans sitting on the edge of their seats is that in which Sammy Tyrod, Arena, fights Frankie Lamont who on Thursday night extended his winning streak to nineteen out of 23 bouts. Lamont is an East Side Club fighter.

The Benny-Arizzi and Herb White bout will also be a corker while Billy Maher returns to the local squared circle by tackling a strong foe in Tommy Higgins, Arena. Higgins holds two victories over Frankie Lamont. Harry Graber will also have a stiff foe in fighting Tilton Jackson who was stopped by Lamont at the Arena. Maher knocked out William Simms in the Arena show.

A bout has been secured for Tally Sciarra while over the week-end, Moffo expects to close bouts for Marshall Moerri, Vince Delia, and Hokey Leighton. Sciarra will meet Mike O'Brien, Germantown Boys' Club.

First bout will go on at 8:30 o'clock sharp.

MULHOLLAND AGAIN CHALLENGES LANDRETH IX

Manager John A. Mulholland and his Bristol A. A. baseball club are still anxious for a game or series of games with the Landreth Seeds, according to a communication received by the sports editor. Mulholland believes that his team would form a real opposition for the Seeds, and he points out that his team has a record which entitles it to a game with the best in this section.

Both the Bristol A. A. and the Landreth Seed teams have an impressive list of victories and local sport fans are interested in the challenge and proposed match. It is believed that if the teams are matched that the ensuing battle will be long remembered by local residents.

In his latest communication Mulholland says: "I see where the Seed Team is going to play the better clubs in this section and I wonder if their record of victories and defeats puts Dave Landreth's club in the better class. I don't think it does. The seed team will no doubt prove to Dave that somebody was kidding him when he was told that he had a ball club."

NEWTOWN WILL PLAY BORDENTOWN SUNDAY

The third game of the playoff series for championship of the Delaware River baseball league will be played on the Helm veld diamond tomorrow afternoon. Wood field in Florence where the teams will combat in the fourth degree.

Tomorrow's tilt will see two of the best right-handers of the circuit pitted against one another when Harry Holslaw, unbeaten Newtown twirler, matches his slants with Del Farnsworth, star South River twirler, who was responsible for the Bordentown championship the first half.

To date, Newtown has won twenty-one straight league victories with three independent wins mixed in with it to make it a total of twenty-four straight. Holslaw has won eleven of the twenty-four wins with Sammy Wiggins and Chappie Matthews getting the remainder. Wiggins won last Sunday's match although he received able assistance from Holslaw who fanned the last four batters to face him.

The "Wissies" who a week ago defeated Pleasantville of the Philadelphia League, are putting up about as good a game as any team in the Quaker City at present.

Pitco, who plays in centre field for the visitors, is considered the tops in this department. The game will commence at 3:15.

LANDRETH SEEDS WIN OVER OCEAN CITY, 4 TO 3

OCEAN CITY, N. J., Sept. 5.—Landreth Seeds defeated Ocean City Collegians here yesterday afternoon in a very fast and exciting game 4 to 3.

Prahl only was in serious trouble in the ninth inning when a forced play at second retired the side as the tying run was going home.

Barrett made a seemingly impossible catch in deep left center of a ball labeled a home run, the best catch made here this season.

The crowd was much impressed with the game the Farmers played and will book the visitors for a series here next season.

Four fast double plays kept the game tight.

BENNY LAMONICA TO FIGHT AT CROYDON ARENA

Benny Lamonica, crackjack right-hander from the Arena Boxing Club, has been secured to fight on the card of the opening night of the amateur boxing bouts to be held in the Croydon Arena, Wednesday night. The bouts will be sponsored by the Dazger Boxing Club with Mickey Giordano acting as match-maker and Johnny Straffe, second.

Lamonica's foe will be none other than that inside fighter, Karl Schmidt, of the Nativity Boxing Club. In this bout the fight fans of this section will be witnessing two warriors of different style of fighting. Lamonica is a rough chap and will take two or three blows just to land that right-hand solidly. His left is practically useless as shown in his two bouts with Vince Delia.

On the other hand, Schmidt does plenty of dancing, dodging and weaving and is a hard target to hit. He recently scored an easy victory over Tally Sciarra. Lamonica will have a job on his hands trying to hit "Toots" as the Nativity boy is always on the alert and does plenty of boxing. However, Lamonica says all that he needs to do is get in two or three rights and the bout will be over.

As an opener, Match-maker Giordano will pit two 118-pounders against one another, Frank Sturges, south-paw colored boy from the East Side Club, will mix it up with Carman Volo. Seymour. Volo and Sturges are both well-known in this section, having appeared several times. Volo has split a pair of decisions with Hokey Leighton and also dropped a close verdict to Tony Maglione.

Tickets for the inaugural show can be reserved by phoning 9939 or 2939.

BENSALEM ELEVEN OUT DAILY FOR PRACTICE

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Sept. 5.—Although school does not officially open until September 9th, 39 candidates for the 1936 Bensalem football team have been working out daily since September 1st, in an effort to get in shape for the opening battle with Newtown High on September 25th.

Coach George Renner, starting his fifth season as the Bensalem mentor, has 19 returning lettermen from last season's team, which won five and tied two out of nine games played, around which to build his team. These players are: Captain Joe Wilk, halfback; Bill Jungmans, end; Tom Adams, guard; Charlie Carter, tackle; Kim Faust, guard; Charlie Abbott, center; Harold Robinson, Bruce MacKenzie, Bob Lange and Leonard Malone, backs.

The team manager is Walter Fortman, assisted by Joe Dedrick and Eugene Snyder. Several of last year's junior varsity players are showing up well and will probably displace some of the returning lettermen.

Thus far the drills have consisted of passing, kicking, handling the ball, and other basic fundamentals, but with the opening of school, heavy work will start. Many more candidates are expected to report when school gets under way Wednesday. Coach Renner will then be assisted by Franklin Meyer and Gene Corson, the latter a new member of the Bensalem faculty.

The season's schedule is as follows:
Friday, Sept. 25 Newtown, home.
Sat., Oct. 3 Upper Moreland, away.
Friday, Oct. 9 Yardley, home.
Sat., Oct. 17 Pemberton, home.
Sat., Oct. 31 Hatboro, away.
Sat., Nov. 7 Morrisville, home.
Friday, Nov. 13 Langhorne, home.
Sat., Nov. 21 Alumnus, home.
Wed., Nov. 25 Fallsington, away.

Hospital Is Scene of Party For Motherless Child

Unmindful of the fact that her mother was killed in an automobile accident 10 days previous, a little patient in Harriman Hospital was made happy yesterday when nurses at the institution, Dr. George T. Fox, and a group of relatives conducted a party for her.

The feted child was Shirley L. Barger, aged eight, who as yet knows nothing of the tragic accident on August 25th which took the lives of her mother, Mrs. Lillian K. Barger, and of her grandmother, Mrs. Lena Guntz, both of Philadelphia.

Attending the party last night were Miss Lena Guntz, aunt of the little girl, who drove the car which figured in the accident at Wheatshaf; her little brother, Walter Barger, aged five years; both of whom are likewise patients in the hospital recovering from injuries received in the crash. Shirley's father and some other relatives came to Bristol to help make the day a little more cheerful for the girl who is recovering from a scalp wound.

The refreshments and the gifts, which always interest a child, were much enjoyed, but none could take from the minds of Shirley and Walter the idea that they should go to "mother's room" and tell her of the "nice party" they had. Nurses, doctors and relatives found it difficult to keep the child from wondering why she couldn't tell her mother all about it, knowing that only too soon the time will come when the tots will have to be informed of their loss.

Walter enjoyed the affair as much as his feted sister, and in spite of a broken leg did full justice to his share of the goodie. Decorations of Japanese lanterns and flags had been arranged by those attending the party, and all was in readiness to surprise Shirley when she returned from a walk about the hospital grounds.

File Three Suits For $15,000 Damages

this place, as the plaintiffs, and Walter C. Spencer, Ivyland, all of whom figured in an accident here at the South Main and Ashland street intersection June 4.

The plaintiffs aver that Walter C. Spencer operated a car owned by Albert L. Spencer. The damage done to the Smith's car amounted to $100.

Smith's doctor bill amounted to $32 and in her own right she is suing for personal damages amounting to $2500.

The plaintiffs live at 2747 North Main street, this place.

Involving a minor plaintiff, the third action in trespass has been filed by Janet Narolski and Carl Narolski, of Chalfont, and George A. Duden, 224111 93rd street, Queens Village, N. Y.

In the statement of claim, it is alleged that Janet Narolski, a minor, was injured December 29, 1935, near Ringoes, N. J., while conversing with Mrs. Gretchen Murphy, who was sitting in an automobile.

The minor plaintiff suffered a fracture of the left leg and is claiming damages amounting to $2,000.

She alleges that she has spent $500 for medical aid and will have to expend more in order to regain her health.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT

the less than 3,000 listed corporations. There are OVER A HALF MILLION SMALL CORPORATIONS largely owned by people of small means.

If we add the assets of 52 million savings depositors and the 112 million holders of insurance policies, and the 12 million members of Building and Loan Associations, we have $57,465,059,000.

Then if we add to this the clear value of the practically three million farms operated by their owners we have $74,508,351,000.

This is almost as much as the value of all the wealth in this country of all kinds in 1900. The total value of all wealth in 1900 was $88,517,307,000. If we were to add the value of small homes and the value of stock and the value of a million and a quarter of independent stores to the above, it would doubtless go far beyond the total wealth of the country in 1900.

A commission of Europeans came to this country some time ago to study conditions here. The findings of this Commission were in part as follows:

1. SEVEN PER CENT OF THE PEOPLE IN THE WHOLE WORLD living in the United States under the American plan had MORE PURCHASING POWER THAN ALL OF EUROPE.

2. This little group has created and owned MORE THAN HALF THE WEALTH OF THE WORLD.
